I think they are too complacent in assuming the democratic faith is immune from radicalism. He himself has said that the purpose of this coalition government is to eradicate the welfare state and he, like a lot of his supporters would be delighted to see benefits cut for the poorest in society. There are almost too many similarities with the other extreme of the coalition, the BNP, albeit it is not as extreme as them. The only way to eradicate the "welfare state" is to make people have enough money to buy their own oven and hotplates. But then that will only ever be the case with: a) People living in luxury, b) People living in luxury plus having a large number of foreign workers and servants, c) People living in luxury plus being able to import the luxury products for themselves. Step 1: WAIT WHILE WE BLOW UP THE EUROPEAN FOUNDATIONS Gore Vidal had a wonderful phrase: "The people are more American than America itself." At the outset of the second world war, no one would have believed that the capitalist democracies would have surrendered to national socialism, and yet here we are. Here we are because the state of the US, the UK and the rest of the capitalist democracies broke down in a series of financial crises that threatened to bring down the whole world of capitalism. There was no public trust in the state's ability to bail out its banks; no economic or political consensus regarding which businesses should go and which should be rescued, no relief for people to have some "security". Here we are because the state, too, became a partisan tool, and because of all the social "worries" that have been festering since the great crash of 2008. Here we are because all the great nations of Europe have been, once again, in debt crises and none has found a way to unite to deal with them. Here we are because we are a people so "afraid" of one another that we not only fail to trust one another at the level of the state, but we fail even to trust ourselves. In all of this, there can be no doubt who are the real enemy. It is not the state; it is not the people. It is the people of Europe and North America who have become too idle, too wasteful, too complacent, too reliant on other people's charity and too lazy to care about the state of the economy that has brought us

Facet A facet (plural facets) is a plane face on an object with two edges in common with the surface of the object. Facing is a concept in aeroacoustics and the calculus of complex wave forms. On a three-dimensional object, an arbitrary facet of a chosen direction is called a "plane facet". A facet may be used to define a shape. Two or more facets that share an edge are called parallel facets, but in general one may have many more. In solid geometry In solid geometry, a facet is a part of a solid with at least three faces (one of which is the same as the surface) sharing an edge. The solid is therefore bounded by surfaces that meet at facets. A polyhedron is a three-dimensional solid bounded by flat (two-dimensional) surfaces. Faced solids can be represented in orthographic projection by polyhedra. A polyhedron with only flat faces is called a flat poly
